

Building guaranteed income for retirement

Canadians in retirement

Canadians are living longer, healthier lives. This is exciting for those approaching or already in their retirement years, but it also means that it's more important than ever before to have a solid foundation of guaranteed retirement income they can rely on for the rest of their lives.

One of the biggest financial concerns pre-retirees have is not knowing if they will have enough money to see them through retirement¹, but with a source of guaranteed lifetime income as part of a sound retirement plan, you can worry less and feel more prepared. While these can be effective for accumulation, few – if any of them – allow for guaranteed income. It's up to the investor to manage the income in retirement and hope that their money does not run out.

What will your retirement look like?

As the majority of Canadians do not belong to a company-sponsored pension plan, generating guaranteed income is an increasingly important part of every retirement strategy. To illustrate just how important it is to have guaranteed income in retirement, let's look at the following example.

Tom is a 61 year old teacher who is in good health and leads an active lifestyle in which he spends much of his free time golfing and traveling. In retirement, Tom plans on staying active and travelling even more. He is one of the lucky few that has a Defined Benefit Pension Plan and knows with certainty what his income will be throughout retirement. Having that dependable income that he can rely on, Tom doesn't worry about the markets or the possibility of a future financial crisis because neither will affect his retirement funding.

Now compare Tom's situation with that of his friend, Richard. Richard is 60 and owns a small fishing shop. He has similar retirement dreams as Tom's, but, Richard does not have a guaranteed pension plan. Until a few years ago, Richard was feeling good about his retirement savings – he has been investing on a regular basis and has seen his nest egg grow. With the recent market turmoil, his confidence is shaken and he now worries constantly about the daily ups and downs of the market. Overall, he is quite concerned about his savings and whether he will have enough to fund a long and active retirement.

Richard wishes he had the security and peace of mind in having guaranteed retirement income. Guaranteed pensions are not as common as they once were, but Richard and the majority of Canadians still need a dependable source of income they can rely on. With different risks affecting retirement security, you need an innovative income solution that helps fill the gap of guaranteed retirement income.

Richard's guaranteed income solution

With Manulife PensionBuilder, you can know with certainty the amount of income that you will receive based on current Income Rate(s). For example, if Richard is able to invest $100,000 in a Manulife PensionBuilder contract at age 60 he secures an Income Rate of 5.63% if he decides to take income when he retires at age 65 and will receive $469 every month for life.

If Richard is able to invest additional money in the future, he'll have the opportunity to participate in potentially rising Income Rates over time, and benefit from a higher guaranteed retirement income amount. The Income Rate(s) used to determine future guaranteed income are subject to change daily.

To determine the amount of guaranteed lifetime income available through Manulife PensionBuilder, unique Income Rates are established for current and future Income Ages at time of deposit based on a number of factors determined by Manulife. These include the age and sex of the annuitant for the Single Life Income Option, and the age of the younger of the annuitant and the Joint Life for the Joint Life Income Option. For current Income Rates, please visit manulife.ca/investments or speak with your advisor.
